

7th Southeast Asian Studies Symposium

“What is Southeast Asia? Exploring Uniqueness and Diversity”

Universitas Indonesia, 22–24 March 2018

Call for Panels and Papers

The Southeast Asian Studies Symposium, organised by Project Southeast Asia (University of Oxford), is the world’s largest annual Southeast Asian Studies conference.

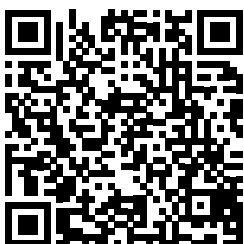

We invite proposals for panels, roundtables, workshops, and papers. The 2018 Symposium will focus on the theme of “What is Southeast Asia? Exploring Uniqueness and Diversity.” Proposals on any topics relating to Southeast Asia are welcome.

Sub-themes include (but are not limited to):

- The Environment, Natural Resources, and Climate Change
- Ecosystems
- Sustainable Development
- Urbanisation
- Public Health
- Migration and Refugees
- Governance and Politics
- Culture, Identity, and Regional Diversity
- Gender and Community Engagement

The deadline for abstract submission is 15 October 2017. Please visit <http://projectsoutheastasia.com/academic-events/sea-symposium-2018/cfpp> or use the QR Code below for more information and to submit a proposal.

We invite all who are passionate about Southeast Asia to join us in Jakarta.

IN COLLABORATION WITH

School of Environmental Science,
Universitas Indonesia
and
Indonesian Environmental Scientists Association

